Comic Book Studies: Heroes and Villains Part 2

Today we live in a world where grandmother, mother, and son all know who Spider-Man is. Why? The answer to this question dates back nearly 100 years ago. Building off the previous course, Comic Book Studies: Heroes and Villains Part 2 will explore Marvel, DC, and other companies leading the comic book industry. We will examine the classic dynamic of Good vs. Evil, which is the classic trademark of storytelling, especially in comic books. Students will study:

- Early beginnings of famous superheroes like Superman in 1938 and Batman in 1939.
- The history of heroes and villains in popular fiction from comic almanacs and early periodicals, storypapers, dime novels, to short-form strip comics.
- What makes a good superhero and what makes a good “bad” villain
- The culture, subculture, and influence of the Marvel and DC universe.
- Marvel’s “marvelous” creations including The Incredible Hulk, Spider-Man, Fantastic Four,
- DC’s “dazzling” creations including Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman, Justice League, and hundreds of other characters
- Independent, underground, and alternative publishers including IDW, Valiant Comics, Mirage, Dark Horse Comics, and their awesome creations including Spawn, Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, Ninjak, Bloodshot, The Walking Dead, and many others.

We will be reading, examining, and discussing comics and their connection to toys, cartoons, movies, and popular culture. Students will have the opportunity to explore different ways to create their own heroes, villains, and comic books. Students will also be given the opportunity to share their own personal connection to comic books and these beloved characters.

Meet the Instructor

Dan Elfawal has a Masters in Special Education/Elementary Education and he is a certified Special Education and Yoga Teacher. He has been educating children and adults for over 15 years and, for the past 12 years, he has worked as an Education Consultant at PBS Consulting & Psychological Resources, P.C. He has served as an education consultant, crisis counselor, SEIT teacher, parent trainer, job coach, and job developer. He has worked in various settings, including K-12 classrooms, colleges, and the greater Long Island community. Most recently, Dan has collaborated with educators from Penn State University and the University of Texas-El Paso to teach hip-hop and cultural studies to adults in continuing education.

PBS Adult Education classes are taught using various instructional methods tailored to the specific needs of adult learners. Students will be encouraged to develop critical thinking, research and study skills, and utilize technology for learning and collaboration. All students benefit from being engaged with interesting material and collaborating with other students.
