Course Description: New York Professional Sports

Let's go New York, Let's go! Whether you are from New York or Nebraska, if you've chanted this at a sports event, you know the feeling! New York baseball, hockey, basketball, soccer, and of course football have played a major role in the lives of millions of people. From a last-minute point bucket at Madison Square Garden to a goal at the end of a game in Nassau Coliseum, and even a World Series game ending home run at Yankee Stadium, New York sports has seen it all! Class lectures will include:

- The history of New York's professional sport teams
- How New York sports has developed into a worldwide brand
- Discuss some of the origins of sport teams and star players
- Examine the importance of female and minority athletes and how they helped shape New York sports
- New York Yankees and their impact on baseball and the 8.5 million "Bronx Bombers" fans.
- We will also be discussing the beloved 69' Mets
- Why New York athletes are considered heroes
- Memorabilia and its impact on popular culture

Students will have the opportunity to share the personal experiences and love for the "game." Be prepared to have some fun and talk about New York sports!

Your Instructor

Dan Elfawal has a Masters in Special Education/Elementary Education, is a Board Certified Behavior Analyst, and a certified yoga instructor. He has been educating children and adults for over 15 years. At PBS Consulting & Psychological Resources, P.C., Dan has provided education consultation and crisis counseling, parent training, job development and coaching, and SEIT services. He has worked in various settings, including K-12 classrooms, colleges, and the greater Long Island community.

PBS Adult Education classes are taught using various instructional methods tailored to the specific needs of adult learners. Students will be encouraged to develop critical thinking, research and study skills, and utilize technology for learning and collaboration. All students benefit from being engaged with interesting material and collaborating with other students.
