Course Description: The Write Stuff: Creative Writing Class and Workshop

Do you have a story you want to write? A poem? A personal essay? Or maybe you want to learn more about how to be a great writer? Then this is the course for you! In this course we will explore and practice different types of Creative Writing and learn about the skills needed to be a successful writer. Students will be encouraged to share their writing with their classmates, give and receive feedback, and express themselves creatively. Each week one hour will be a class wherein students learn about different genres of Creative Writing and important writing skills. The other hour will be a writers' workshop. Students will work on their individual writing projects and have an opportunity to share their work and provide their thoughts and helpful tips to help each other improve their skills and writing pieces. Throughout the course students will each work on a final writing piece of any genre they choose, and these pieces will make up a virtual literary magazine to be distributed at the end of the course! This class will be entirely virtual and take place via Zoom with coursework and assignments on Google Classroom. Anyone is welcome!

Your Instructor

Alyssa Goodman is a St. John's University School Psychology graduate student and an experienced writer. She has been writing poetry for many years and has won multiple awards and honors for her work. She was the lead editor for her high school literary magazine and president of her school's creative writing club. Although she majored in psychology in college at Binghamton University, she also took multiple Creative Writing courses and continues to write today. When she is not in school or at work as a Behavior Therapist, Alyssa enjoys bingeing TV shows, watching movies, reading, and petting her dog, Riley. Alyssa is so excited to be part of the PBS ACE family and is really looking forward to meeting new people and teaching this course!

PBS Adult Education classes are taught using various instructional methods tailored to the specific needs of adult learners. Students will be encouraged to develop critical thinking, research and study skills, and utilize technology for learning and collaboration. All students benefit from being engaged with interesting material and collaborating with other students.
