Overview of Theater Arts

Do you love the theater? Have you ever wanted to learn more about acting? This is the course for you!

Theater Arts will provide an overview of theater, introducing students to various dramatic platforms, such as plays, musicals, monologues and other dramatic platforms. Students will strengthen interpersonal relationships and self-advocacy skills through learning about the audition, casting, and rehearsal process. Students will learn how to choose a monologue, take a great headshot, prepare for cold reads, and practice scene work with peers. Examples of performance will be given in class and through video and audio media. Guest speakers will also share their experiences involving theater.

For their final projects, students are asked to perform their choice of theater: monologue, scene work, or song. This course is open to students with no performance experience, as well as those looking add to existing skills. Join us this fall for this new, fun class!

Meet the Instructor

Andrew Murano: Andrew studied theater at SUNY Plattsburgh and has a wealth of experience in Theater as an actor, singer, director, stage manager and playwright. He is very excited to be joining the PBS Campus Experience on the campus of Stony Brook University as an instructor. Andrew also works to support the inclusion of people with different abilities into their communities.

PBS Adult Education classes are taught using various instructional methods tailored to the specific needs of adult learners. Students will be encouraged to develop critical thinking, research and study skills, and utilize technology for learning and collaboration. All students inherently benefit from being engaged in an active college environment.
