Baseball 101: History and Appreciation

"Love is the most important thing in the world, but baseball is pretty good, too"

- Yogi Berra.

Baseball History is American History. In this class, we will explore the history of the game, from its origins to the present day. We will see how baseball was born, grew up, and matured to become more than just a game, but our national pastime.

Along the way, we'll learn about the players and other characters who have become legends. We will see how baseball is part of the bigger story of our country. We'll also learn how to appreciate the game through fun exercises and projects that highlight the finer points of play.

Wear your team gear and join us! It's going to be a Homerun!

Meet the Instructor

Michael Savini is a lifelong baseball fanatic and a proud fan of the New York Mets. He holds a Master's Degree in Education and has worked with a diverse array of students. His love of baseball started when he was a toddler when he was introduced to the game by his older siblings and cousins. He is captivated by the wonderful stories, people and numbers that tell the tale of our national pastime. He estimates that he has watched over 6000 baseball games and is a true "student of the game". In his playing days, he was a pitcher and a third baseman (go Pat-Med Raiders!) and also has experience as a coach. Michael is excited to share his knowledge and love of baseball with others, and even Yankees fans are welcome!

*PBS Adult Education classes are taught using various instructional methods tailored to the specific needs of adult learners.
