Intro to Improv

Improv is a style of acting where the performers do not have scripts or pre-planned dialogue. This introductory course is for anyone that would like to learn more about the basic rules and tools of Improv, while having fun learning!

Students will explore the history and practice of Improvisational theater, starting with the ancient Greeks and moving through the centuries to modern day. Learn why this has become such a popular acting technique!

In this course, students will examine the influence of different audiences, environments and situations and how they change what the performer does on stage. Videos and guest performers will help expand the students' knowledge on this subject.

Students will also learn how public speaking and the ability to "think on your feet" can help in their personal and professional lives. Students will engage in games and activities to explore how Improvisation can be a vital tool in different settings.

This is sure to be a fun class. Join us this Spring!

Meet the Instructor

He's performed in everything from children's theatre to musical theatre and teaches youth acting classes in his spare time. Evan also runs The Carriage House Players, a year round theater company based in Centerport, NY that is dedicated to producing new and relevant theatrical works while also producing Shakespearean classics in the summer. Evan studied acting at Marymount Manhattan College and at the William Esper Studio in New York City. He is incredibly excited to begin teaching this class and getting to know all of the students!
